The Interdent minational Comity Com mission met at Montpelier, Wednesday, and elected the following officers: Presi-dent, Rev. C. H. Merrill, St. Johnsbury; secretary, Rev. J. A. Newton, South Ryegate. Rev. C. S. Nutter of St. Albans was elected a member of the executive committee. The commission assembled to determine what denominations shall be assigned to the charge of certain small parishes which can support only one church.

A. A. Marvin, former station agent at Sheldon Junction, has resigned his position, F. X. Cedilotte, formerly Central Vermont cashier at Barre, taking his place. Mr. Cedilotte's place will be filled by Frank McEnany of St. Albans.

J. C. Weld, deputy collector of customs at West Berkshire, who resigned on account of ill health Dec. 1, has been succeeded by Charles L. Orton of Essex. The Rutland Florence Marble company has filed with the secretary of state notice of a change of the domicile of the company from Rutland to Pittsford.

The license commissioners of Underhill Center have revoked the I couse granted to Amos Humphrey. Mr. Humphrey was tried and found guilty of selling liquor Sunday.

Arthur F. and James D. McCarty of Burlington were arraigned last week before the United States authorities for an alleged violation of the bankruptcy law, being charged with the removal of property from a store just before bankruptcy proceedings were begun Bail in the sum of $600 each was turnished. There will be a hearing in United States court some time in February.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Butler, who have been manager and matron, respectively, of the Sheldon Poorhouse Association for the past six years, have resigned, their resignations to take effect Jan. 10, 1904. Mr. and Mrs. Butler are to move to Burlington, where they will have charge of a large farm. They formerly lived in Franklin.

The trustees of the university of Vermont have decided upon a new medical college building to cost $100,000. While the details have not been worked out completely, building operations will be begun in the spring. Officer John J. Brothers of Burlington, suspended from duty by Mayor Burke last June pending an investigation of charges against him, has been restored to auty by the mayor, and resumed work. He was charged by the mayor with political hostility in being chosen alternate to county and state republican conventions. A partial hearing was held before the police examiners, but the witnesses examined did not prove that Mr. Bro hers had served in these capacities as charged. An adjournment was taken until other witnesses could be procured, but nothing else was ever done.

Ira C. Calet of Washington sprung a glad surprise on the directors of the Heaton hospital by sending a Christmas present of $1000 for that institution, to be used as the directors see fit. This is not the first time the hospital has benefited by the liberality and benevolence of Mr. Calei, for since its organization the Washington philanthropist has presented the Montpelier institution with $1000.

An abstract of the conditions of the national banks of Vermont, at the close of business Nov. 17 last has just been made public by the comptroller of the currency. It shows that the loans and discounts of Vermont banks on that date were $12,980 747; that the total spicie was $661,053, of which $415 265 was gold coin. The individual deposits in Vermont national banks amount to $11,932,269. The percentage to deposits of each on hand, redemption fund, and due from reserve agents is 27.24. The percentage of legal reserve to deposits was 17 21.

A shortage of $4800 in cash, about $3000 of it money that was supposed to be in the North Bennington National Back, was reported last week, in the accounts of Myron Barton, who for 25 years had been town treasurer of Ben nington. No one has any idea that Mr. Barton ever knowingly took one dollar from the town, but being an old man his system of book keeping was obsolete and some errors must have crept in. Mr. Barton died several months ago.

A new kind of thiel is pursuing his handiwork in Burlington. His scheme is to snatch pocket books from ladies on lark and un requested streets. On South Union street Saturday night a lady was relieved of a bag containing $5 On Monday night anoth riedy was similarly accosted and she lost $2 as she was walking on Pine street between Pearl and Chen y streets. The police are using ext a vigilance to apprehend the high waymen.

condemned animals and settle the losses according to law. There are but two state veterinaries, Dr. F. A. Rich, of Burlington, and Dr. George Stephens, of White River Junction, connected with the board, and they were unable, withont the aid of local veterinaries, to cover the field as rapidly as desired, so the farmers have in a measure taken things into their own hands. By the present arrangement about a thousand cattle a week are being tested.

Slack Bros., manufacturers, of Springfield, gave the village a pleasant surprise Christmas. Col. W. H. H. Slack presented the village corporation with a hose wagon as a Christmas gift, while Slack, his brother, informed Chief Engineer Barney of the fire department that if he would get an up-to date hose carriage for use in the residential part of the village known as Summer hill be would pay for it.

Christmas day was properly observed at the Vermont soldiers's home, Bennington. At noon a Christmas dinner was served in the cining room. Later in the day the members assembled in the same rooms and everyone received gifts. Most of them were of a useful kind. This was made possible by the action of several of the societies of the Woman's Relief Corps through the state, which sent gifts of money. This has been the custom at the home since it was first organized.

George M. Rowell, former agent at the Burlington freight office of the Rutland railroad, was placed in jail Thursday because bail had been released in two cases against him charging him with traudulently collecting premiums on insurance policies. Mr. Rowell is also wanted at Bennington on sim larcharges and an officer went to Burlington Thursday to arrest him, but owing to the fact that he was already in jail was unable to get him. It is charged that Mr. Rowell sold accident policies and collected the yearly premiums, but that the policies were never delivered. Mr. Rowell denies the charge, saying that he was duped by Barnard Eriskein, who claimed to be general agent for the company. The cases will be tried January 26

A Diplomatic Official.

During the reign of Emperor Napoleon III, he and the empress visited | Miss Brightman. Normandy and had arranged to spend a couple of days at Evreux. M. Janvier de la Monte, who was the prefect, learned that the revolutionaries intended to hiss the sovereigns as they passed, and so he summoned the leaders of the movement and told them that he knew of their plot. "If you carry out your plan," said he to them, "you will get six months in prison. If you do not your friends will accuse you of cowardice and treason. As a way out of the difficulty I propose to lock you up at once until the emperor has gone.' The conspirators accepted the terms offered them, and so the emperor was greeted only by cheers, as the revolutionaries, frightened at the arrest of their chiefs, had not dared to utter a sound. After the emperor and empress had gone the prefect went in person to release his prisoners, who had had such a pleasant time that they greeted him with cries of "Long live the prefect!" to which M. Janvier de la Monte, who was a man of wit, replied, "My friends, do not overdo it."

New York's "Dinmond Rooms."

Only men and wemen who want to purchase an expensive set of jewels, say $10,000 worth or upward, get a glimpse of the "diamond rooms," as they are called, in the big New York jewelers' shops. Gems worth less than that usually are kept in show cases and examined in trays at the counters. But if a customer wants to make a larger purchase-a diamond necklace with pearl pendant worth from $40,000 to $50,000, for instance-he is shown into a parlor where he can examine the jewels more at his leisure and see the salesman weigh them on the most carefully balanced scales. These parlors as a rule are luxuriously but simply furnished and are convenient to the safes. It is not an unusual thing during the holiday season for a salesman in a well established store to make three or four

These facts are given by two officers who conducted experiments to determine the effect of weight on soldiers in full marching order. The five men who volunteered as subjects marched a distance of fifteen miles and eighty-two yards. The different weights carried were forty-eight, fifty-nine and sixtyfive pounds. With the first weight it was found that a man at a moderate temperature could cover the distance with ease; in hot or close weather slight inconvenience was experienced, which disappeared when the march was over, so that the men could begin the next day as well as ever. The weight of fifty-nine pounds did no harm in moderate weather, but proved fatiguing when it was hot, and effects were felt the next day. When the men carried the third weight the ill effects were very marked.

No. 146

[Original.] "No. 146, you are discharged from this prison and may go where you like. I hope you'll live an honest life and not have to come back here again."

As the warden spoke the prisoner stared at him as though his mind were upon other matters, then, without a reply, hastened out into the world.

Several years before this Henry Tracy was a young business man of such marked ability that when Manning Brightman, an intimate friend, though fifteen years his senior, died it was found that Tracy had been named sole executor of his estate and guardian of the only heir, Edith Brightman, seventeen years old. One day Abel Barnicourt, who had once been Brightman's attorney, produced papers transferring the whole estate to Sarah Parton, who claimed to be the second wife of the deceased. These papers disappeared, and there was such strong evidence that Tracy had stolen them that his incarceration followed. While he was in prison the estate remained in litigation, and Edith Brightman, being deprived of her income, was forced to earn her own living.

On the evening of his discharge he stood on a street corner waiting for the clocks to strike 10. At the first in the early seventies. Harte's breezy foined him.

"The shovels?" asked Tracy. "On the place."

"All right. You go ahead, and I'll follow. We don't want to be seen together." Tracy followed the man out of town with it to the city.

"We'll go to your room, Brown," said there, I believe."

"Yes." A few minutes later Brown scratched a match in his room, lit the gas, locked he liked best of all his lines, and Lowthe door, pulled down the shades, and ell smoked, well content with the the two opened the iron box, taking praise. Yet they were not men to get out a bundle of papers. Brown meanwhile unlocked a desk and brought tions in directions where Harte had forth an envelope containing docu- none.-Harper's. ments. Tracy seized them eagerly and scanned them one after another till be came to one at which he uttered a cry of joy.

"This is the key to the situation!" he exclaimed. "Without this the others are worthless. I'll take care of this diva was then quite a young girl. On myself. You look out for the others. Meet me in the morning at the court- tation came to her and her father to house, and we will swear out the warrant."

It was 11 o'clock at night when Tracy left the detective and walked rapidly to a house where there was but one light burning. He rang the bell and when a servant came asked for

"Gone to bed." "Never mind that. I must see her tonight."

"Who shall I tell her wishes to see her?"

"Never mind that either. She'll approve of your calling her up." When Edith Brightman entered the room and saw her guardian, the exconvict, she caught at the door knob. His imprisonment and the mystery attending it, together with the loss of her property, had not only been a puzzle but a horror to her. When it occurred she was still half a child. Now she was a woman. "Edith," said Tracy, "your estate is saved to you."

She stared at him wonderingly as he proceeded:

"When your father asked me to be his executor he told me of the woman who claimed to be his wife, and that he also suspected Barnicourt. 'When I die.' he said, 'there 'll be some rascality practiced on my little girl. Pronfise me you will see that she is not robbed.' "'I promise on my honor and my life,' I replied. "When the blow fell I knew the papers were fraudulent, but could not prove it. The court was about to turn over the estate to this woman, who would at once turn it into cash and leave the country. I deliberately stole their papers and buried them in my yard. While serving my term I employed a detective, who has only recently unraveled the case. Here is a contract between Abel Barnicourt and Sarah Parton, wherein she agrees to divide the estate with him in case he secures it for her, and below her confession that she was never married to your father, and the documents are all forged, the signatures being copied from letters of your father which had fallen into her possession. This confession Barnicourt was to hold over her in case she refused to divide with him after the estate was acquired."

While Tracy was giving his ward this brief summary of a case which could only be written in volumes her face were the expression not of one delighted at hearing how she had regained her property, but an engrossing pity mingled with wonder, admiration, gratitude for one who had suffered disgrace and imprisonment that it might. pass to its legitimate owner.

"And you did this to fulfill a promfse?"

"No. I loved the little girl for whom I did it."

It was a long while before Edith Brightman, reversing the conventional order of matrimonial occurrences, could persuade Henry Tracy to become her husband. Despite the truth, to the world he was known as an exconvict and his career was ruined. Then he fell ill, and it was in one of his weaker physical moods that his consent was obtained. The pair went abroad and have never returned to ROBERT F. FORBES. America.

"I get up at that hour," cried the spoiled child, "to please any emperor? No, no! I wouldn't think of it! Tell him so."

William I., ever good natured, laughed heartily over her ultimatum, which greatly amused him. The last time his majesty saw Patti was in Berlin, and he was then a dying man. When she called upon him at his box he welcomed her with his most genial smile. "Ah," he said, "you remember Homburg? But you don't mind waiting

The Naval Academy.

The line officers of the navy are arranged in one straight line from admiral to the lowest midshipman. After they are graduated from the academy, in order to merit their respective classes their relative positions never change except when advancement in numbers for special heroism is earned in war or a court martial decrees the reverse. If a boy loses place in his class, he loses place in the ladder of promotion. Whether he is graduated at the top or bottom of his class may determine whether or not he shall reach an admiral's stars. In no other calling does a boy's college standing thus directly influence the success of his entire professional career.-Independent.

The Sturdy Camel,

A camel has twice the carrying power of an ox. With an ordinary load of 400 pounds he can travel twelve or fourteen days without water, going forty miles a day. Camels are fit to work at five years old, but their strength begins to decline at twenty-five, although they usually live to forty. The Tartars have herds of these animals, often 1,000, belonging to one family. They were numerous in antiquity, for the patriarch Job had 3,000. The Timbuktu or Meharri breed is remarkable for speed and used only for conriers, going 800 miles in eight days with a meal of dates or grain at nightfall.
